training

Whether it is training to become a Branch, County or National officer, a standard bearer, caseworker, Poppy Organiser or Poppy Collector, full training is provided so that the organisation maintains its vibrancy and relevancy

Training is provided by the Women's Section in conjunction with The Royal British Legion and updates and refresher courses are provided on a regular basis

ceremonial and remembrance

*'They shall grow not old,
As we that are left grow old,
Age shall not weary them,
Nor the years condemn,
At the going down of the sun,
And in the morning,
We will remember them'*

What does the Women's Section do?

You'd Be Surprised!

Over 85 years of Care and Support

The Women's Section of The Royal British Legion has been providing care and support to the ex-Service community for nearly 90 years. In the United Kingdom alone, it is estimated that 11 million people are eligible for support from the Legion, including ex-Service men and women, families and dependants – people of all ages and backgrounds with varying needs.

Through its Welfare Programme The Women's Section works to Improve the Quality of Life for Excluded People & Their Families, to Help an Increasing Number of People Live Independently and Help People Develop Skills to Find Sustainable Employment

President

Her Royal Highness Princess Anne, Princess Royal

The Women's Section is made up of a country-wide network of over 1,100 branches with a membership of 52,500 women. The benefit of joining our network is that you are a part of a group of women of all ages, background and interests who live in your local community who have come together for social and other support, optional involvement with fundraising events and, most importantly, the knowledge that through your membership you are helping others in need.

Membership is open to all women over the age of 16 years and includes:

- Women in HM Forces
- Ex-Servicewomen
- The women dependents of past and present Servicemen and women
- Women who don't have a Service background but support the aims of the organisation
